THE NEWS THAT CHANGED A COUNTRY'S DESTINY

In July of 1776, Town Criers throughout the Thirteen Colonies shouted news that was never to be forgotten: "Congress declares that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES"! Our Declaration of Independence had been adopted, marking a new era of freedom for a young nation, giving it the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Our country's freedom was not, of course, won for us by this historic document, but the Declaration of Independence was the call to arms that inspired Americans to throw off the chains of oppression and to forge a new destiny for themselves and their children. Men who were willing to "mutually pledge to each other their Lives, their Fortunes and their sacred Honor" for the cause of freedom, answered that call. Because they did, we now enjoy the greatest form of government ever devised by man. It is our way of life . . . it is our American Heritage.

Economy Is A Virtue For Rhodes

James A. Rhodes has been Ohio's state auditor for nine years. He has just finished his ninth fiscal year in that office with a sizable balance left over from the appropriation the legislature gave him.

He has ended fiscal 1962 with $42,967 left over. The savings, about which he can be proud, were not just a flash in the pan because of his candidacy for governor this year. He has been consistent, having finished each of the previous eight years with a balance and leaving a grand total of $340,257 in the state treasury during the

Mr. Rhodes attributes his success with costs of his office to efficient and welltrained personnel, a reduction in maintenance costs and use of modernized office

Although his job as state auditor has been to handle the taxpayers' money, Mr. Rhodes has shown he can handle money properly in his own office, too. This is something unusual in government today, where frugality and watchfulness in spending are not always considered virtuous.

In making his annual report, Mr. Rhodes says he is certain that economies such as he has invoked can be extended to other fields of state government.

Perhaps Ohio's voters, when they elect a governor next November, will give him a broader field in which to try.

Kennedy The Politician

President Kennedy's well-known love for and ability in the world of politics was displayed in especially fine form at his news conference the other day.

The system of government in which he has achieved the ultimate success rests, of course, on politics. Only amateurs and dreamers really believe a president can or should divorce himself from the realm of political maneuver and manipulation.

The most skilled politician so intermingles his management of the affairs of state and his participation in the affairs of politics that it is frequently difficult to draw a line of distinction between the two. This occurred repeatedly during the Kennedy press meeting.

REMINDED of former President Eisenhower's recent charge that the present administration is spending too much on defense and appears to be floundering, Mr. Kennedy said defense spending is meant to keep the peace and charged the GOP itself appears to be floudering on the question of whether he is doing too much or too little to fight communism. Whether the opposition thought this fair or not, it was a brilliant thrust, by political standards.

Discussing the painful subject of his program's lack of progress at the hands of his own party's lethargic majority on Capitol Hill, the President immediately related the solution to politics, saying the voters must be persuaded in the fall campaigns to send more sympathetic men to Congress. The opposition might reply this indicates the President feels more at home in the political arena than in the world of statesmanship, which would be fair enough, by political

THE MOST revealing comment along this line, however, came in answer to a question about younger-brother Teddy Kennedy's qualifications for the Senate seat Massachusetts voters will fill in November. The President said he has confidence in Teddy's ability because the latter served as his campaign manager in the 1960 pre-convention period and rounded up many delegates for him. There is no question a man needs a degree of political ability to reach the Senate but there is some question whether that is all the ability he needs to serve well in the

An advantage of this intermingling of the affairs of state and politics is that it usually helps to get things done. A disadvantage is that it allows the opposition to put the scornful label of "politics" on everything one

President Kennedy's particular problem appears to be that he has a shortage of the former and a surplus of the latter.

The number of Soviet students studying in American colleges this academic year was more than twice as large as in 1960-61 - 37 against 16 - but exchange students from Soviet satellite countries have been cut down as much as 17 per cent. Only Yugoslavia which is not classified as a Soviet satelliteshowed an increase from 119 last year to 135

The Institute of International Education revealed in its annual census of foreign exchange, "Open Doors," that there were no students now studying in the United States from Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Latvia, each of whom had a few here last year. Polish students here fell from 82 to 70 this year, while Hungarians - mostly refugees-dropped from 48 to 32.

There were also no students from East Germany (but 864 from West Germany) and none from Red China, although the Republic of China has sent 4,735 students here this year. Cuba has exported 1,094 students to these shores, of which 328 were considered refugees from the Castro government.

Over-all, 72,113 foreign persons came to this country in 1961-1962 for study, training or teaching, an increase of more than 8 per cent over last year and an all-time high. An unprecedented number of American citizens were studying at 590 universities abroad, 22, 263 - a 27 per cent increase in a year.

The greatest proportionate increase was in African students, who stood at 3,930, jumping 39 per cent in a year. Over the last 10 years, the IIE said the number of African students

Altogether, 58,086 foreign students from 149 countries studied in 1,789 American colleges and universities, plus 5,530 foreign professors, instructors, lecturers and research scholars (a 52 per cent increase in a year), from 90 countries, and 8,497 foreign physicians from 94 countries training as residents and in-

The old man who tells you there's going to be a change in the weather because he feels it in his joints now has scientific proof that he is a good weather prognosticator. But he's accurate only under certain con-

Dr. Joseph Lee Hollander and his associates at the University of Pennsylvania, have proved that weather does affect the joints of victims of arthritis. They have done it with a special $150,000 weather chamber called a Climatron.

Into the Climatron, they put two rheumatoid arthritis patients at a time. Then by adjusting the controls, the doctors can change the temperature, the airflow, the electrical charge, the humidity and the pressure.

THE PATIENTS live inside for several weeks. They keep busy reading, sewing, playing games or working with the technicians and doctors who frequently make tests on joints and other body conditions. The Climatron is homey, it has twin beds, a bathroom and easy chairs. To get to the outside, however, the patients have to pass through an airlock and submarine doors.

In his first tests about a year ago, Dr. Hollander tried varying one aspect of weather at a time. He set the temperature high and low, or the humidity or the air pressure or the other variables, but only singly. The patients showed no changes except the normal fluctuations of their disease.

For a while Dr. Hollander doubted the many stories of arthritis victims and their friends. But he remembered that when he was a physician in Texas, he observed patients who suffered from the arthritic pain more acutely with the coming of a storm. Next he tried varying two of the atmospheric conditions at a time. Four pairs of patients were used. With the very first combination, Dr. Hollander began to see an effect. He created the beginning of an

In 29 out of 40 tests, the patients grew worse. They complained of pain and stiffness. And when the doctors checked the stiffness, tenderness and strength of grip they confirmed the patient's opinions.

One of Dr. Hollander's patients who had made a contribution to the construction of the Climatron told him: "Hell . . . why did you have to go and spend all that money. I could have told you that years ago."

But to Dr. Hollander, a patient's opinion is one thing and scientific proof is another. Patients, even contributors to science, have been known to be wrong.

other day, the word was spread far and wide that the President had suffered a "defeat." Then. when the adm in istration's foreign trade bill was passed by the House by a substantial margin, the David Lawrence event was described as a big "victory" for Mr. Kennedy.

But, actually, in an issue as complex as the farm problem and with so many varying interests involved it can hardly be measure was clear-cut for either

The vote did, of course, reveal a negative trend—the feeling that governmental controls of farm production are questionable. But, aside from the merits of this particular issue, it cannot be assumed under the American system of government that a president has been defeated just because a measure he has recommended to Congress is not passed.

The converse also is true. The national legislature has not been defeated when a president vetoes a measure that has received one less than a two-thirds majority of both houses. The Constitution plainly provides for a difference of opinion between the executive and the legislative branches of the government.

What is lacking today, to be sure, is party responsibility in the same sense in which it is usually exercised under a parliamentary system. In Europe, if a prime minister makes a proposal to Parliament and it is denied by a substantial vote of his own party, the point is sometimes but not always made that a vote of confidence has been withheld.

When the farm bill was voted Democratic party have often united with conservatives in the majority in Congress.

Since the Democrats obtained virtually a two-thirds majority in both houses in 1960, there has been a feeling that perhaps the coalition would weaken and that it might even be wiped out by the election in 1962 of more socalled liberals in both the Republican and Democratic parties in the North

The votes in the last few weeks in Congress, however, have tended to support the theory that the coalition is still as strong as ever. President Kennedy hinted at his news conference last week that he may campaign on this issue this autumn.

One of the reasons, however, why bipartisan coalitions are natural in Congress is that there are diversified interests throughout the country Congressmen from rural districts have many problems in common, irrespective of party, just as members who represent urban communities find themselves looking at many questions the same way.

FOR THIS REASON it is not likely at any time, no matter how powerful a president's leadership or how eloquent his words, that there will be an exact relationship between a president's strength and the votes that he gets in Congress on particular

After all, a president may recommend and suggest and urge Congress to take a certain line of action, but this does not mean that each individual member of his party in Congress will always agree with him, no matter how much that member may admire the chief executive or wish to help him advance his political

I for one ask how far does it go? Fellow Americans, we had better wake up! We are slowly being taken in by an evil force if we loose our freedom to worship God in the way each individual desires to worship Him. Abraham Lincoln's proclamation of a government for the people, of the people and by the people has been scuttled. We no longer count as a majority should, but are driven by a few men mad for power.

Our forefathers, husbands, brothers and sons fought for our freedom. America wake up! A nation which forgets its God is asking for trouble. Perilous times are upon us. II Timothy 3:1. Economy Is A Virtue For Rhodes

James A. Rhodes has been Ohio's state auditor for nine years. He has just finished his ninth fiscal year in that office with a sizable balance left over from the appropriation the legislature gave him.

He has ended fiscal 1962 with $42,967 left over. The savings, about which he can be proud, were not just a flash in the pan because of his candidacy for governor this year. He has been consistent, having finished each of the previous eight years with a balance and leaving a grand total of $340,257 in the state treasury during the nine-vear span.

Kennedy The Politician

President Kennedy's well-known love for and ability in the world of politics was displayed in especially fine form at his news conference the other day. The system of government in which he has achieved the ultimate success rests, of course, on politics. Only amateurs and dreamers really believe a president can or should divorce himself from the realm of political maneuver and manipulation.

The most skilled politician so intermingles his management of the affairs of state and his participation in the affairs of politics that it is frequently difficult to draw a line of distinction between the two. This occurred repeatedly during the Kennedy press meeting.

REMINDED of former President Eisenhower's recent charge that the present administration is spending too much on defense and appears to be floundering, Mr. Kennedy said defense spending is meant to keep the peace and charged the GOP itself appears to be floudering on the question of whether he is doing too much or too little to fight communism. Whether the opposition thought this fair or not, it was a brilliant thrust, by political standards.

Discussing the painful subject of his program's lack of progress at the hands of his own party's lethargic majority on Capitol Hill, the President immediately related the

Student Exchange

The number of Soviet students studying in American colleges this academic year was more than twice as large as in 1960-61 - 37 against 16 - but exchange students from Soviet satellite countries have been cut down as much as 17 per cent. Only Yugoslavia which is not classified as a Soviet satelliteshowed an increase from 119 last year to 135

The Institute of International Education revealed in its annual census of foreign exchange, "Open Doors," that there were no students now studying in the United States from Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Latvia, each of whom had a few here last year. Polish students here fell from 82 to 70 this year, while Hungarians - mostly refugees-dropped from 48 to 32.

There were also no students from East Germany (but 864 from West Germany) and none from Red China, although the Republic of China has sent 4,735 students here this year. Cuba has exported 1,094 students to these shores, of which 328 were considered refugees from the Castro government.

Over-all, 72,113 foreign persons came to this country in 1961-1962 for study, training or teaching, an increase of more than 8 per cent over last year and an all-time high. An unprecedented number of American citizens were studying at 590 universities abroad, 22,-263 - a 27 per cent increase in a year.

The greatest proportionate increase was in African students, who stood at 3,930, jumping 39 per cent in a year. Over the last 10 years, the IIE said the number of African students

Dr. Joseph Lee Hollander and his associates at the University of Pennsylvania, have proved that weather does affect the joints of victims of arthritis. They have done it with a special $150,000 weather chamber called a Climatron.

Into the Climatron, they put two rheumatoid arthritis patients at a time. Then by adjusting the controls, the doctors can change the temperature, the airflow, the electrical charge, the humidity and the pressure.

THE PATIENTS live inside for several weeks. They keep busy reading, sewing, playing games or working with the technicians and doctors who frequently make tests on joints and other body conditions. The Climatron is homey, it has twin beds, a bathroom and easy chairs. To get to the outside, however, the patients have to pass through an airlock and submarine doors.

In his first tests about a year ago, Dr. Hollander tried varying one aspect of weather at a time. He set the temperature high and low, or the humidity or the air pressure or the other variables, but only singly. The patients showed no changes except the normal fluctuations of their disease.

For a while Dr. Hollander doubted the many stories of arthritis victims and their friends. But he remembered that when he was a physician in Texas, he observed pain the North The votes in the last few weeks in Congress, however, have tended to support the theory that the coalition is still as strong as ever. President Kennedy hinted at his news conference last week that he may campaign on this issue this autumn

One of the reasons, however why bipartisan coalitions are natural in Congress is that there are diversified interests through out the country

Congressmen from rural districts have many problems in common, irrespective of party, just as members who represent urban communities find themselves looking at many questions the same way

FOR THIS REASON it is not likely at any time, no matter how powerful a president's leadership or how eloquent his words, that there will be an exact relationship between a president's strength and the votes that he gets in Congress on particular

After all, a president may recommend and suggest and urge Congress to take a certain line of action, but this does not mean that each individual member of his party in Congress will always agree with him, no matter how much that member may admire the chief executive or wish to help him advance his political fortunes.

Perhaps the most pointed quotation which is frequently recalled in Washington is one that is attributed to a certain congressman of the Republican party who was being urged by a Republican president to help sustain the veto of a soldiers' bonus bill after World War I.

The member of Congress listened attentively to the presidential arguments and said that he himself agreed in theory with all of them-then added? "Unfortunately, Mr. President, you do not vote in my district

So it has been over the years a question more of what the voters in each district or state demand of their representatives in Under a system of so-called re- Congress rather than the wisdom dent's leadership.

The American system provides for two independent branches of government, and in a mid-term election-when the president, of course, isn't running-members of Congress must stand alone on In fact, ever since New Deal their record. The real victory or

Associated Press Sports Writer Subtract Dick Donovan from Cleveland and the Indians very well could be floundering around in the second division.

As it is, the hopeful Indians are just a half game off the American League pace being set by the New York Yankees and Los Angeles

The Indians, in the throes of a five-game losing string that had knocked them out of first place, called on Donovan to be the stopper Monday night.

The tall right-hander, acquired in the trade that sent fiery Jim Piersall to Washington, responded with a brilliant two-hit, 2-0 triumph over Baltimore in which he faced the minimum 27 batters.

The victory pushed his record to 12-3, which, subtracted from the Indians 42-34 season mark, would put Cleveland below .500 and in

New York and Los Angeles remained a half-game up on the Indians, the Yankees beating Kansas City 8-4 and the Angels edging Washington 2-1. It left the Yankees with a .004 hold on first place. Minnesota lost to Boston 4-3 and went 11/2 games off the pace, while Detroit edged Chicago 2-1.

New York blew a 4-0 lead, fashioned on home runs by Roger Maris, Hector Lopez and Mickey Mantle, then rallied for four runs in the eighth against Kansas City. A sacrifice fly to Bill Skowron and Phil Linz' single each accounted for one run and Tom Tresh drove in two more with a single in the Yanks' winning rally.

Subtract Dick Donovan from Cleveland and the Indians very well could be floundering around in the second division.

As it is, the hopeful Indians are just a half game off the American League pace being set by the New York Yankees and Los Angeles

The Indians, in the throes of a five-game losing string that had knocked them out of first place, called on Donovan to be the stopper Monday night.

The tall right-hander, acquired in the trade that sent fiery Jim Piersall to Washington, responded with a brilliant two-hit, 2-0 triumph over Baltimore in which he faced the minimum 27 batters.

The victory pushed his record to 12-3, which, subtracted from the Indians 42-34 season mark, would put Cleveland below .500 and in seventh place.

New York and Los Angeles remained a half-game up on the Indians, the Yankees beating Kansas City 8-4 and the Angels edging Washington 2-1. It left the Yankees with a .004 hold on first place. Minnesota lost to Boston 4-3 and went 11/2 games off the pace, while Detroit edged Chicago 2-1.

New York blew a 4-0 lead. fashioned on home runs by Roger Maris, Hector Lopez and Mickey Mantle, then rallied for four runs in the eighth against Kansas City. A sacrifice fly to Bill Skowron and Phil Linz' single each accounted for one run and Tom Tresh drove in two more with a single in the Yanks' winning rally

QUESTION: How did the music syllables get their names? * * *

ANSWER: There is a tale in musical lore that about a thousand years ago Guido d'Arezzo, a composer and choir master, was trying very hard to teach some choir boys a new hymn. The hymn had seven lines and each line began one note higher than the last line did. The boys were having a lot of trouble remembering where each line began and they were singing the entire hymn off-key. Signor d'Arezzo hit upon a clever scheme. He took the first syllable of each line and drilled the boys on just a line of these syllables. The syllables were ut, re,me, fa, sol, la, and si. When the boys saw that the first syllables of each line made a scale, which is a line of notes each one note higher than the last, they had no trouble in learning the hymn. Later, ut was replaced by do, which is the first syllable of the Latin word "dominus." Si was changed to ti, and the music syllable system was completed.

FOR YOU TO DO: Do you play a musical instrument? Have you ever wanted to play the trumpet or the tuba or the flute in the school band? Check with your school's music section. Many schools can make arrangements for you to learn and can lend you an instrument to learn upon.
